What is Lean Thinking?

Lean is a culture of respect and continuous improvement that creates more value for the customer while identifying and eliminating waste. Lean is a process, a culture, and a way of thinking that aligns project/organizational vision while boosting morale and sense of purpose.

Research finds that construction projects utilizing Lean methods see a reduction in project delays and cost overruns.

Best Lean projects outperform typical projects in the following ways:

- ▶ 61% achieve profitability, compared to 30% in typical projects
- ▶ 57% exceed quality expectations, compared to 17% in typical projects
- ▶ 73% of high Lean intensity projects are completed on or ahead of schedule

NOT SURE WHERE TO START?

Here are some of the most popular member-exclusive resources available in the hub:

eLEARNING

LCI eLearning offers small batch learning, enhancing retention and catering to diverse learning styles through personalized instruction. Learn about key tools such as The Last Planner System, daily huddles, 5S, Target Value delivery, and more with downloadable resources, videos, hands-on interactions, and simulations.

WEBINAR RECORDINGS

Expand your Lean education with no travel downtime or lost work days. LCI offers webinars on a variety of Lean principles conducted by LCI instructors and industry experts with real life case studies and examples.

EMBARK ON YOUR LEAN LEARNING JOURNEY WITH LCI

No matter where you are in your Lean journey – whether you just learned about Lean from this packet or if you’ve been practicing it for years – LCI’s learning pathway is designed to curate the resources that will help you propel your skillset forward.

LCI Events

LCI provides wide-ranging opportunities for connection for Lean practitioners of all experience levels at both the local and national levels.

LCI CONGRESS

Congress is the ultimate event for Lean learning and collaboration, hosted annually in October. Owners, the design community, general contractors, trade partners and other Lean professionals gather to build on ideas and practices and to drive Lean practices forward.

LCI LEAN IN DESIGN FORUM

Design Forum is an annual event for industry professionals committed to advancing Lean practices in design, architecture, engineering, and construction. Each spring, we explore how Lean methods streamline designers' workflows, enhance creativity, contribute to cost-control, and drive innovation across all phases of design.

COMMUNITIES OF PRACTICE

LCI nationally supported Communities of Practice (CoPs) offer opportunities to connect locally, participate in education courses and workshops, hear from local Lean project teams, attend Gemba walks, and more.
